Home for the Holidays

The word "home" is a relative term these days. I grew up in Princeton, W.Va., went to college in Blacksburg, Va., lived in Russia for a few years and now reside in Orlando, Fla. So where exactly is "home" for me? Currently, I would consider my home to be in Orlando. I have lived there for six years and I am quickly becoming a Floridian. I can't imagine living anywhere where the temperature is below 50 degrees. Yes, I am spoiled now. But I also think "home" will always be where I grew up. This holiday season, I flew back to West Virginia to lots and lots of snow. That was quite a shock for this so-called Floridian. Whenever I am in cold temperatures, I try to remind myself that I once lived in Siberia. That only helps for a few seconds. Needless to say, I had a wonderful time visiting with my parents, brother and extended family. As a reminder though, Jesus tells us that if we are believers, our "home" is not here on earth anyway. He says, "In My Father's house are many rooms; if it were not so, I would have told you. I am going there to prepare a place for you (John 14:2)." So my quest for "home" might have to wait for a little while ☺.

A white Christmas ☺

I pray that you each had a wonderful holiday season celebrating the birth of Jesus. As I start this new year, I am so thankful for each of you and your partnership with my ministry. As always, thank you so much for your generosity, kindness and prayers. I so greatly appreciate them. I pray that the Lord continues to bless you in this upcoming year. Take care.

Until all have heard,

Christy

Enjoying family on Christmas Eve. From L to R: my aunt Jo, my cousin Matthew, me and my brother Chad.
